U. S. SENATE RE-PASSAGE PROHIBITION MEASURE

COAL MINERS TAKE HOPE IN PRESIDENT'S PROHIBITION VETO

ARGUE THAT "WAR EMERGENCY" PASSED; WAGE AGREEMENTS NOT BINDING

COUNCIL CALLED

Lewis to Meet With International Executive Board Tomorrow.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Indianapolis, Oct. 28.—President Wilson's veto of the prohibition bill yesterday was advanced today by officials of the United Mine Workers of America here as an argument in favor of their contention that the "war emergency" has passed and that the miners therefore are no longer bound by wage agreements entered into for "the continuation of the war."

It is hoped, they said, that the action will swing public opinion their way and aid in securing their demands for a 40 hour week and 60 percent increase in pay, failure of which has resulted in an order for a strike of all numerous coal miners on November 1.

Hope of Postponement Held.
Washington, Oct. 28.—Hope was expressed in official quarters today that the soft coal strike set for Saturday would be postponed if it could not be averted. Announcement that John I. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, had summoned members of the full scale committee to meet the international executive board at Indianapolis tomorrow, was accepted as an indication that the miners' organization was not planning to plunge the country into industrial chaos might be headed.

Steps to be taken by the government to meet the situation if it takes place, will be considered finally today at a meeting of the cabinet. The government is determined to be ready with any machinery not needed in the situation if the miners quit.

Meanwhile, the railroad administration is continuing its efforts to expedite movements of coal from mines by ordering all coal not unloaded by owners within 24 hours to be dumped on the ground, and to release cars for their immediate return to the field. The office of "Director General Hines" denied that orders have been issued for the detention of coal for operation of trains.

Lewis Goes to Indianapolis.
Springfield, Ill., Oct. 28.—John I. Lewis went to Indianapolis today to confer tomorrow with members of the miners' international executive board on plans for the strike called for Saturday.

Mr. Lewis was content to say the strike order remained in effect and would be operated in the meantime, unless rescinded in the meantime.

FARMERS ORGANIZE FOR LAND CLEARING

Marquette, Oct. 28.—The first land clearing association in Marquette county and one of the first in Wisconsin was organized at a meeting of farmers held in Celiz yesterday. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. W. E. Morton, superintendent of the Marquette county agricultural extension, and 16 directors from various towns in the county were named. Steps also were taken to form a county clearing association to work in conjunction with the land clearing association in financing the work.

COUNTERFEITERS OF U. S. MONEY CAUGHT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Vienna, Oct. 28.—A group of counterfeiters who were arranging to print a large amount of American $10 bills, have been detected and arrested under peculiar circumstances. A number of an engraving firm, on his return to the city, after a business trip, found his trunk had been made a die, which had been taken to the shop of a printer. He notified the police, who found spurious bills to the amount of $30,000 ready for printing and awaiting delivery.

DAKOTA FARMERS TO VISIT WISCONSIN HERDS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Oshkosh, Oct. 28.—Lester Gray, aged 20, of Ripon, paid the penalty today for breaking into the summer cottage of Fred Atton at the village of Butte, after the discovery of valuable property some of which was recovered. In municipal court Gray was sentenced to three years in the state penitentiary at Waupun. His punishment was made the more severe by the fact that he had previously been convicted of a crime and was on parole when the Atton burglary was committed.

COUNCIL VOTES TO SETTLE STREET CAR PAVING QUESTION

AGREES TO PAY HALF COST OF WORK DONE BETWEEN TRACKS ON SOUTH MAIN STREET; FIGHT IS CLOSE.

By a vote of 6 to 5 the city council in special session last night agreed to a "fifty-fifty" settlement of the suit brought against the city to secure payment for the paving between the tracks on South Main street, thus bringing to an end the $5,000 damage case which has been hanging fire in circuit court for a year. It will cost the city $2,500 to make the pavement according to the agreement made with W. E. Dougherty, counsel for the Janesville Traction company.

The settlement was agreed upon by the council after a long debate which finally ended in a tie, 5 to 5, when the vote was taken. Mayor Welsh asked for a tie vote, the deciding vote being "aye." Second and Third ward aldermen voted solidly for an acceptance of the settlement.

It was stated that the suit consisted of $1,420.45 for paving between one foot each side of the street-car tracks on South Main street, $3,553.12 for the cost of strip between the tracks, and $150 as a bonus for using an asphalt filler.

According to an informal ruling made by Judge George Grimm, the city would doubtless have been liable for the cost of paving between the tracks or $1,420.45 had the case come to trial and this part of the suit had never been disputed. It was agreed that the city should stand this cost alone.

PLOT TO KIDNAP EDESEL FORD FOILED

Mexican Too Busy to Think Of Running for President

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Oct. 28.—Despite strong efforts reported as under way in Mexico City to persuade Xignacio Amilias, ambassador to the United States, to become a candidate for the presidency to succeed Venustiano Carranza, the ambassador refuses to discuss the matter, declaring that he is too busy even to think about politics.

CITY BUDGET MARKS ADVANCE TOWARD GREATER JANESVILLE

COUNCIL AUTHORIZES LARGEST FUNDS EVER IN HISTORY OF CITY.

$100,000 INCREASE

Fire and Police Department Improvements Prominent Among Plans.

Advancement toward a greater Janesville was the keynote of the special-council meeting at the city hall last night when without a dissenting vote, councilmen authorized the greatest budget in the history of the city, nearly one-third million dollars, to cover next year's municipal expenditures, making the city tax levy this year approximately $16.30 per $1,000 instead of $13.02 last year.

Alderman W. J. Hilt evidently spoke the spirit of the council last night when he said he hoped to see Janesville the second city in the state with respect to its growth now. The actual amount of the budget is $312,678.34.

Although the amount of the budget is nearly $100,000 greater than last year, it is no greater than it is felt absolutely necessary to have in order to carry on the city's work. The budget was cut, pared and slashed in many parts before finally being presented by Mayor R. E. Welsh to the city council last night.

Fire Truck to Be Bought.
Prominent among the reasons for the $100,000 increase is the provision for the purchase of a new fire truck for the Spring Brook station and three additional men on the fire department. The industrial school's petition for $14,500 to cover expenses in 1920 was the occasion of some discussion. Mayor Welsh asked for a tie vote, the deciding vote being "aye." Second and Third ward aldermen voted solidly for an acceptance of the settlement.

Mayor Welsh pointed out that the continuance of the case in court would involve extensive litigation and that the city would be liable for the cost of paving between the tracks or $1,420.45 had the case come to trial and this part of the suit had never been disputed.

Alderman Cronin favored the settlement because as he said it was a "try-out" to determine whether the city would endeavor to give better service if it was met half way. The settlement was agreed upon by the council after a long debate which finally ended in a tie, 5 to 5, when the vote was taken.

COMMITTEES FOR COLLEGE CAMPAIGN READY FOR START

At a meeting held at the Chamber of Commerce last evening plans were discussed and committees appointed for the starting of Janesville's part in the drive of the Wisconsin Colleges Associated for $5,000,000.

A. E. Matheson acted as chairman in the absence of W. H. Dougherty, local chairman, who was unable to be present at the beginning of the meeting. Mr. Matheson introduced the director of the campaign, Mr. Clymer, who has under his direction the campaign which will be carried on in these colleges.

"During the war little was said about these colleges, they took things for granted, they were not needed help. The endowments are not sufficient to meet the expenses. More than 80 per cent of the students in these colleges are from Wisconsin. Right now the privately endowed colleges cannot meet the requirements of the students desiring education in Wisconsin.

KING PAYS HOMAGE TO AMERICAN ARMY; SPEAKS IN CONGRESS

HIS MAJESTY EXPRESSES THANKS OF BELGIUM AND PRAISES U. S. SOLDIERS IN ADDRESSES BEFORE SENATE AND HOUSE.

Washington, Oct. 28.—King Albert of the Belgians paid homage in the house of representatives today to the American army which he described as "the decisive factor in determining the victory." In an address to the senate a few minutes earlier he had asserted that "nothing could better characterize the reign of universal democracy," than the friendship between his country and the United States.

The addresses of his majesty today were the longest and most important he has made in America. They were intended as messages to the entire nation and his sincerity in expressing the thanks of Belgium to Americans for their aid was plainly evident.

King Salutes Predecessors.
"I salute," he said to the senate, "not only the eminent men who received me here during the day, but I salute the memory of your great predecessors who during 130 years have in this place and given to the whole world the example of highest civic virtues. This welcome of the senate seals that reception of the king and so wonderfully received everywhere during my journey across this magnificent country. I am deeply moved by the expressions of sympathy that the name of Belgium evokes from this noble American people."

"Nothing could better characterize the reign of universal democracy than that friendship which unites the great republic with its one hundred and ten million citizens and the king of Belgium with his seven and a half million inhabitants."

Equality in Love of Liberty.
"If there is no equality of power and riches between nations, there is equality in the love of liberty and in aspiration towards social progress. On both sides of the Atlantic the same ideal inspires us. The exchange of visits to Belgium of eminent American citizens, of whom many sit in this assembly, is a concrete proof of the bonds between the two nations."

"I hope with all my heart that these relations which have been fortified during the war as well as by the admirable assistance which you gave Belgium by feeling her people in the midst of their suffering will never cease to develop for the great good of the two peoples."

Belgium Indebted to U. S.
The king's address to the senate of King Albert and the Duke of Brabant, lasted only half an hour and they went immediately to the chamber in his majesty's state car.

WAR TIME DRY RULES EFFECTIVE SOON AS SIGNED

ANNULMENT OF ENFORCEMENT MEASURE STARTS LIVELY ARGUMENTS.

RECORD IS SET

Action Taken Within Three Hours After Wilson Announced Stand.

Washington, Oct. 28.—The prohibition enforcement bill was repassed today by the senate over President Wilson's veto. The section relating to war time prohibition becomes effective immediately upon signature of the bill by the president.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Temporarily postponed by President Wilson's veto of the prohibition enforcement bill but later greatly encouraged by the equally unexpected action of the house in passing the measure over the president's veto, dry leaders in congress were working today to obtain necessary two thirds vote in the senate.

Leaders of the anti-prohibition forces were equally active for though there be an adverse vote in the senate, there still may be a veto, before constitutional prohibition becomes effective January 16.

The vote in the house yesterday of 177 to 127, a record for the president's veto, was announced from the White House, and followed an hour in the house chamber lasting from the time the executive message was read until the final roll call.

Treaty Ratification Ends War.
War-time prohibition will be brought to an end by presidential proclamation immediately after the senate ratifies the German treaty. It was said today at the White House.

Officials explained that the war-time act provided for the prohibition of the sale of alcoholic liquors after the president had been declared and when the army and navy had been demobilized. Congress was informed yesterday that the president had vetoed the prohibition enforcement bill that demobilization of the army and the navy had been completed.

Several Democrats Object.
An effort to have the senate act on motion to re-pass the prohibition enforcement bill over President Wilson's veto was made soon after the president's veto. A long parliamentary wrangle over the rules ensued.

Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, and Senator Sterling, republican, South Dakota, asked unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

Senator Nelson, republican, Minnesota, chairman of the senate judiciary committee, endorsed the action of the house in passing the prohibition bill was privileged.

Senator Underwood, democrat, Alabama, said war-time prohibition was unconstitutional because it involved confiscation of private property without adequate compensation.

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, remarked that as a result of President Wilson's statement on the coal strike and his prohibition veto measures, the country was being led to the end of the war.

The president's statement to the miners declared the war is not ended. The president's statement to the miners declared the war is not ended. The president's statement to the miners declared the war is not ended.

The Gazette Stands Ready to Support all Endeavor to Make Janesville and Vicinity a Bigger, and Better Community.

WISCONSIN COLLEGES.

Rock county is going to be called upon to subscribe money for the support of endowed Wisconsin colleges. The campaign is getting under way and those who believe that education is necessary to build for the future safety and prosperity of the state and nation will respond readily to the call for pledges.

We have been generous in our subscriptions to everything which assured the success of our fight against autocracy. We have dug deep in our pockets for funds to aid the needy; to save women and children from starvation and abuse; to aid in civic projects. Now we are asked to afford the opportunity to those whose principles for which we fought and paid. Those who pledge support to the Wisconsin Colleges Associated will realize on their investment. They will give the youth of our state the chance to prepare themselves to combat any future obstacle which might arise in their path toward realization of high ideals, toward attaining the bigger and better things of life.

We who invest in education for those who follow to take up the burdens of commerce and industry or who will be called upon to solve the intricacies of science or to win renown in art and literature can feel assured the tasks of the future will be well cared for if proper preparation is afforded.

AMERICANIZATION.

Secretary of State Meritt Hull in addressing guests at the Roosevelt dinner Monday night offered a thought which should prove interesting to those who believe that settlement of labor unrest and safe-guarding against radicalism can be brought about by Americanization.

He held the opinion that too much was left to the imagination of the foreign born men and women who came to this country and not enough attention was paid to the manner in which they were greeted by our citizens. He pointed out that the first impression gained by an immigrant arriving on our shores was that every one was out to graft, that they were met by cheap politicians and soap-box orators and that the natural result was a mistaken idea of American ideals.

It is true that we do not set a good example for those who come to us when we allow them to get the wrong ideas of what America stands for. Our duty in working out an Americanization plan is first to show the foreign-born man or woman the best we have to offer and encourage them to follow our best inclinations.

Americanization is going to be one of the most important problems we will have to solve. It is going to occupy our thoughts until we have a successful system of weeding out the best material for citizenship. It will not be done in a few months or in a few years but it must be done and now is the time to prepare for some definite program.

TROOPS ARE PRAISED.

Reports from headquarters of the steel strikers and from the officials of the steel corporation laud the United States regular army men in charge of the strike situation in the Gary region.

The strikers say: "We were allowed free speech and our rights were protected."

The steel men say: "They protected our plants and made the strikers obey the law."

It is a condition that always follows the use of regular army troops. Both strikers and mill operators look alike to the regulars, whose only thought is that the law must be obeyed and the rights of free men must be respected. The striker must conform to the laws of the state and country, or he is arrested. And the mill operators may not employ bullies to provoke the strikers to disorder. It is a case of allowing the law to take its course.

Strikes are perfectly legal affairs. Disorder isn't. The regular army man knows this, and best of all, both the strikers and the mill operators know it. And they also know that the entire resources of the United States are behind the soldiers. And the soldier knows that there are certain limits to which he himself may go and go no further, for he has learned to obey first of all.

And best of all, the regular army man shows no favor to either side during his term of duty. A rule or a law is a law over which no person, be he operator or striker, may step.

Perhaps the employment of regular army troops will be the solution of this labor and capital disorder.

HYPERPHENISM STILL IN POLITICS.

The New York Staats Zeitung, upholder of kultur, now urges its German-American readers to vote for a Tammany judicial candidate, in preference to a capable veteran judge opposed by Boss Murphy.

Judge Newburger should be defeated, we learn, because he is supported by Bainbridge Colby and "Jimmy" Gerard. Colby is all wrong because he said hard things about Germany during the war. Former Ambassador Gerard, elegantly styled "Jimmy" by the Staats Zeitung, is a bad character because he commented unfavorably upon the Kaiser and the fatherland in his book.

Judge Newburger may deserve re-election on all other grounds, but the fact that he is supported by Colby and Gerard should bring him defeat, according to this shining journalistic beacon of hyperphenism.

German-Americans thus are counseled to go out with political scalping knives for all truly patriotic and outspoken Americans, or for all who may be associated with the conspicuously patriotic.

As we mull over this ugly bit of evidence that hyperphenism is lifting its head again, we read that German opera has recently been produced in New York under the direction of Otto Grotz, who rejoiced over the sinking of the Lusitania. The American Legion protested against the revival of German performers, and Mayor Hylan tried to shut them off, but a judge was found to grant an order permitting the operas to go on.

Returning soldiers say that German folk feel no remorse over the part they played in bringing on world disaster, and do not now regard themselves as beaten. Evidently there are plenty of their race to carry on here the struggle for realization of their aims.

OPEN-MINDEDNESS, INDEED!

Secretary of Labor Wilson made a preposterous proposal to representatives of soft coal miners and operators a few days ago. He asked them to go into conference with open minds, without prejudice, and with no hard and fast programs agreed upon in advance.

How unreasonable, these days, to ask men to con-

OTHER LOVES.

I've pledged my love to her entire,
To her I pay complete devotion;
Her happiness is my desire,
And yet she calls it just a notion.
"You still have other loves," says she,
"Deep in your heart are little nooks
Where I can never hope to be."
And then she cites my love for books.

"I'm yours till life shall pass away!"
Full many a time have I protested;
"Yours only till my dying day!"
And she has smiled and then suggested.
My violent vows are partly true.
"Of brutal man you're just a type
Says she, "For well you know that you
Are still devoted to your pipe."

"My heart is wholly yours," I cry.
"You rule it now and shall forever";
And then she tells me in reply,
"That isn't so and will be never."
To other loves you fondly cling
Nor can I thank you east them off,
I am not all and everything."

sider anything with open minds! Why, it is absurd.

Take the coal miners, for example. They are ready to confer with the operators, and to take steps to reach conciliation. First, however, it must be thoroughly understood that the six-hour day, the five-day week, and the sixty percent wage increase must be agreed upon as trifling preliminary details. Then, a devastating big strike is to start on November 1 unless these little stipulations are granted in full. Starting from there, the coal miners are quite willing to go into a broad gauge discussion of the issues, in order that no injustice may be done, and that the public may not suffer.

In other words, the miners are willing to go into a conference if they can hold loaded six-shooters at the heads of the other conferees.

If the coal miners get away with their modest little program, every other union man who burns soft coal in his home will pay $2 more a ton for it. The cost of railroad operation would greatly increase, and it would go far and rates. The high cost of living would advance materially all along the line, because every industry would suffer.

Not enough coal to answer the country's needs could be mined in a 30-hour week. Then what? Why, the men would be required to work current usual hours per week, say 44 or 48, and as a result they would draw double pay for 14 or 18 hours of overtime.

The idea of proposing open-mindedness in these days of cold-blooded hold-ups!

Good-Bye Till Next Year.

Bad Year for Rats

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director
Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—During the past few months thousands of rats have died in a nation-wide warfare against them, and thousands more of them are doomed to die, as the warfare spreads from city to city. It is estimated that between 30 and 40 American towns and cities have conducted campaigns against the rats or are now conducting them. At this time the Baltimore city government is slaughtering rats wholesale to the accompaniment of much popular applause and newspaper publicity.

The latest stunt in Baltimore has been the showing of a moving picture film, first used in Richmond, Va., which is a sensational exposure of the private life of the rat. His outrageous fecundity, his disregard of sanitation, his greed, his cost to man, rats eat two hundred million dollars worth of food every year in the United States. It takes the labor of two hundred thousand men to keep our cities free of rats, and the rats pay our generosity by carrying bubonic plague and many other diseases about with them.

Rats Hard to Exterminate.
The extermination of the rat is one of the most important problems the country faces, and the rat is the hardest animal on earth to exterminate. He is hardy, shrewd, and above all, prolific. Rats breed six or eight times a year, and begin their prolific life at the age of about three months. Eight to ten young rats are born in each litter. Some statisticians have estimated that a pair of rats in three years would have established a family containing 359,799,432 individuals. It is believed this work out the arithmetic for yourself.

The rat campaign was started by the biological survey and is under the special guidance of Doctor Bell and Doctor Fisher of that bureau. These are the men who cleaned up the prairie dogs and the several western states, often leaving whole counties literally without a prairie dog. Dr. Bell says he "went out and lived with the prairie dogs" until he had developed a delicate method of killing them, and then he put that method into operation on a large scale and thoroughly organized. He had intended to do the same thing with rats. It would not be possible to exterminate the rats as completely, and cleanly as the prairie dogs and grasshoppers were exterminated, but it would be possible to save the country millions of dollars and to reduce the danger from several fatal diseases.

Method of Killing Found.
The first thing was to find a method of killing rats that was thoroughly practical. The survey found such a method in systematic poisoning with barium carbonate. It wrote a bulletin about it, and instructed several campaigns, but because of lack of funds the survey had not intended to launch its main assault on the rats until next year.

Meantime, various commercial concerns and city governments seem almost to have taken the rat-killing business out of the hands of the government. Various cities have had the manufacturers of rat poison and rat traps in the United States suddenly taken a new lease on life, and on advertising agencies, but in addition, several concerns have been organized for the purpose of exploiting the new rat poison which has been made popular by the government's campaign. The biological survey now appears to be somewhat embarrassed, therefore, by the fact that whenever it issues a report, it is boosting the business of sundry shrewd commercial operators. Nevertheless the survey cannot well desert its post, for it is easy to see its well-laid plans for a grand rat war next year. Accordingly, it has adopted the seemingly successful policy of working with the private operators, and exercising a sort of informal government supervision over them.

Real King is Slesman.
The real king of the rat killers is a middle-aged traveling salesman who happened to pick up a copy of the government bulletin explaining how rats could be killed with barium carbonate, and who instantly saw the great commercial possibilities of that government endorsement. He forthwith went into the market and bought barium carbonate at a price of about $60 a ton, and had it put up in two-ounce packages which were to be sold at 25 cents each. In this way he sold a ton of poison which cost him $60 would retail at a gross price of $4,000. Of course the cost of packing it and selling it had to come out of that, but it is easy to see that this rat killer was allowing himself a reasonable margin of profit.

Having prepared his poison, he now went out and lived with the rats, as Dr. Bell had lived with the prairie dogs, until he knew all of their little detestable preferences and other peculiarities, and then he had his poisoning method down fine. He then organized a rat exterminating company, with salesmen and assistants, and started a large and important southern port city.

He broadcasted this city with government literature about the fright-

CUTTING EXPENSES.

I love to ride in a touring car,
And zip off the old stone road;
I love to tour the burgs afar,
And joke with the merry road.
I love to observe the trees flash by,
And hear the good motor hum;
I love the rumble as on we fly,
With the sound of a kettle drum.

I love the rush of the bracing air,
And the feeling of joy it brings;
It's sport that's beyond compare,
A sport that is fit for kings.

It's the jolliest thing I know by far,
And my heart in rapture melts;
I love to ride in a touring car,
When it's owned by someone else.
If we can just get everybody in this country to strike and the everything up, prices are bound to drop. Give everybody an increase of 100 percent and watch the cost of everything drop. As an employer has to increase wages he immediately reduces the price of his goods to the public. It's wonder we never thought of it before.

PASSING THE BLAME.

We never blame the tailor when we have to use a pin;
We never blame the shoe man when we have to wear a shoe;
We never blame the hatter when our lids we have to lout,
But we always blame the laundry when our shirts wear out.

We never blame the typist when he writes our letters wrong;
Nor blame the hairdresser when she holds our head too long;
We never blame the waitress if she serves a dirty plate,
But we always blame the home folks if the dinner's late.

WOMAN BULLFIGHTER.

Lisbon, Portugal.—The bull ring might be considered as the one remaining strip of forbidden territory to a woman. Nevertheless, Portugal now possesses a woman matador who yields in nothing to her male colleagues.

Her name is Juana Mathestele. As a mere child she was fired with the determination to enter the arena. Ultimately Marcello Costa, a Portuguese champion, offered to train her gratuitously.

She made her appearance in the arena at Oporto. In half an hour she killed three fierce bulls and raised the enthusiasm of the public to such a pitch that she was showered with money, jewelry and other offerings were showered upon her. Her last season's earnings amounted to $7,500.

A leading feminist, long known to the whole world as a novelist and journalist, is Senora Emilia Pardo-Bazán. Spain has an honorable record for intellectual women, but Senora Pardo-Bazán is probably the leading living feminist, the author of a series of books on women and of many psychological novels. Though denied the right of being elected to the Spanish Academy of Letters because she is a woman, she has been requested by the government of Spain to serve in the department of education, and in 1916 was invited to fill a chair in the University of Madrid. WOMAN SUFFRAGE IN SPAIN

The woman suffrage movement is moving down upon the Spanish-speaking women. And word comes that the next annual meeting of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance may be held upon invitation in Madrid Spain, and probably in April, 1920.

With the complete suffrage an achievement in Scandinavia and the British empire and almost an achievement in America, the fur-skinned women of the world are virtually enfranchised. The complete victory of woman suffrage in Italy has already been reported. The only opposition left in France is of a perfunctory nature. So the field of conquest is now in old Spain and new—in the Spanish peninsula and in Spanish America. Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl seventeen years old and have been a young man twenty-one. I met him in the spring when visiting and I kept company with him for a month. Then I was called home.

I have been visiting at the same place again and met the young man again and love him very dearly. Would it be all right to let him come to see me. My folks don't want me to go with him.

I have been corresponding with a man for two years, although I have never met him. A month ago he sent me a letter. Would you advise me to wear it. He is my father's best friend and is coming to see us in a month or two. Would the letter make me engaged to the man?

BEAUTY.
You are too young to marry. A young man can call upon you against your parents' wishes. Wait a year or two and at the end of that time if you still care for him, ask your parents again to let him come to see you.

You should not accept the letter. Although it would not signify an engagement, it would encourage him to think that you would favor an engagement.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: There is a boy in our high school whom I deeply love. He is a very nice looking, but he is considered a "tough" because he is very popular with the girls. He has tried in many ways to forget him, but it seems impossible. Please advise me.

Try harder than ever to forget him and in time you will succeed. This is only a school girl fancy and will not last. If you are careful of your reputation now you will have the respect of everyone and when you are a young lady he will be attracted to you. It does not pay to go with a "tough" boy, because your name would be associated with his and your reputation injured.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Do you think that a girl twenty-two years of age should receive an expensive present from a boy if she does not love him?

Do you think it is proper for a girl to visit at the home of her boy friend at a house party if she knows some of the family?

BLUE EYES AND BROWN EYES.
Unless a girl loves a boy, she should not permit him to buy her expensive presents.

It would be all right to attend the house party if the young man's mother invites you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a girl friend who is going on a long trip. Her father has money and can buy her everything she wants. I would like to give her some little thing which she can enjoy while on the trip. What would you suggest?

TOM.
If the girl has no kiddy, that would probably give her more enjoyment than anything else. Buy her a book or a box of candy.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What is your opinion of a young man who is over twenty years of age, walking up to a sixteen-year-old girl on the street and starting to quarrel with her and make threats. He wants to be a popular young man, but some think him a brute. A brutal action shows a brutal mind. A man who quarrels with a girl was very ill-mannered. People of refinement do not quarrel on the street.

Stuffed Cabbage—Remove any dark outer leaves and parboil cabbage for 15 minutes. Carefully spread the leaves apart and stuff with a mixture made of equal parts of cooked rice and ground meat, well seasoned. Replace the leaves in a cheesecloth. Return to the boiling water and cook until tender. Serve with white or tomato sauce.

Baked Cabbage—One small cabbage, one onion, two tablespoons butter substituted, one cup chopped meat, one and one-half cups breadcrumbs, one teaspoon sage, one teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon pepper.

Cook the cabbage in the fat until brown, then add the meat crumbs and seasoning and sufficient water. Place a roll of this mixture into a cabbage leaf, skewer with toothpicks and place in a greased baking dish. Pour a half cup of water into the dish and bake in a moderate oven for about 30 minutes. This may be served with a cream or tomato sauce as preferred.

Savory Cabbage—Savory cabbage has rough, green, curly or crinkled leaves. It is a hardy type, especially suitable for winter. It may be prepared in the same manner as other varieties.

Brussels Sprouts—Brussels sprouts are a variety of cabbage. The mature cabbage is about an inch or so in diameter and are attached in large numbers to long stalks. When cooked they are as tender as cauliflower and have a delicate flavor. Their chief season is from September to January.

When preparing for cooking the outer skins are peeled off and are must be taken not to overlook them. They are served in a cream sauce or with a butter sauce. They may also be pickled.

Pickled Brussels Sprouts—Trim, wash and drain quite dry several small Brussels sprouts. Put them into a pan, sprinkle well with salt, and let them remain for 24 hours. Drain off the moisture, and if they seem to be too salty, put them in a colander and pour over cold water. Place them in jars and cover them with boiling vinegar flavored with a few white peppercorns, a little bruised ginger, a bay leaf and enough sugar to take off the extreme acidity of the vinegar. Tie down when quick.

Oconto—Grade teachers in the public schools here have petitioned the Oconto board of education for a monthly increase of $10 in salary.

brings me home from a party, should I invite him into the house?

STUDENT.
If it is late and your parents have retired, it is not necessary for you to invite your escort in. Merely tell him you have enjoyed the evening and say good-night pleasantly. However, if it is still early, it would be perfectly proper for you to invite him to come in.

Dear Miss Randolph—A man living in a city thirty miles from my house has invited me to come up there to attend the theatre. Should I wear evening dress?

If you have a train ride before you go to the theatre it seems to me that evening dress would be out of place as it is hard to keep looking immaculate under those circumstances. A dressy blouse and coat suit or a dark silk dress under a long coat would be suitable in my opinion.

THIS SMART COAT SHOWS EVERY NEW FASHION FEATURE

By ELOISE

The coat for the coming winter is a big problem for many reasons. One of the most important things is the price. There are very few coats for thirty-five dollars or forty which are durable and stylish.

There is a larger group at fifty or sixty dollars, but the usual price for a good coat is between $75 and $100. This coat shows the type of the more expensive models.

It introduces the new elongated waistline but for the sake of those women who cannot wear that style a novel belt is placed at the natural waistline. The hip trimming which makes the large collar and the hand about the bottom of the coat as well as the pockets. To keep the snug effect of the sleeves, however, no fur cuffs are used.

The brown chin chin sailor of pressed beaver is a smart accompaniment for the coat, especially for street or informal wear.

New Community Formed.
Marquette—White Rapids is the name of a new community in Marquette county established on the banks of the Menominee, 25 miles from here, just a few years ago. It is growing rapidly and is peopled principally by Indians and the new banks of the Menominee, 25 miles from here, just a few years ago.

Mrs. Harms is a noted lecturer and writer on birds and other nature subjects and has selected this picturesque spot in northeastern Wisconsin as an inviting field to continue her nature studies.

Simple Sanitation.
Are dishes used by a person with tuberculosis safe for others to use after the dishes have been washed in hot soap and rinsed with boiling water? If not, what precaution should be taken? (R. R. M.)

ANSWER—It would be better to use separate dishes for the invalid. Dishes would probably be safe after such washing, but boiling for five minutes would surely destroy any tubercle bacilli.

Apoplexy (stroke of paralysis, cerebral hemorrhage) is no more a nervous breakdown or a nervous disease or a menace to "nervous" persons than a burn. Apoplexy is rather a cardiovascular disease, a disease of the arteries, a disease of individuals who think hygiene is mostly piffle and longevity and personal health from parking in a personal ill health before the public gaze. Intelligent people, on the other hand, shrink from that sort of notoriety, and they, as a rule, protect themselves by giving out whatever little fabrications exigencies suggest.

For the past 40 years cardiovascular disease (heart, artery, kidney disease, including bright's disease and apoplexy) has been apparently increasing in prevalence while other important diseases have steadily decreased according to mortality statistics from census reports. What the majority of persons who have contributed to this anomaly have not been conspicuously nervous. The very fact that this type of disease is on the increase is a reproach to our national intelligence.

We may be shrewd and smart from the neck up; we are regular wishbones from the neck down. What the average and otherwise intelligent citizen doesn't know for nuthin' neck down explains his tendency toward premature physical breakdowns, call it "nervous" if you will.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
The Education Does Not Take.
A college girl has the habit of neglecting studies until about a week before final examinations. In that week she "crams" hard and gets little sleep, sometimes not going to bed until 2 or 3 o'clock. She takes stimulants to help her stand the strain, and makes good grades. As a result, she has a nervous breakdown. She smokes cigarettes to keep them awake. Is this a habit from which she can't break?

ANSWER—No. Nor does it keep one awake or make the mind for restful. It tends to cause irritability, nervousness, and nervousness. It will cause convulsions. If the final examinations were a fair test, no amount of "cramming" would compensate for neglect of study through the term. Trouble with that sort of

The Hoover alone combines these three carpet-cleaning processes.

Shoe soles truck in from the street a gritty type of dirt that sifts deeply into the carpeting and sandpapers the mat. Beating is necessary to dislodge this, and only with the Hoover can this be done indoors dustlessly, easily, regularly. While the Hoover is beating, it is also sweeping with its twenty-four large tufts of soft bristles whirled with the speed of an electric fan, making countless sweeping contacts with the carpet, and as the Hoover beats and sweeps it also cleans by powerful suction, and the floor covering becomes inwardly as clean as outwardly it appears.

She Married an Average Man

By ZOE BECKLEY.

Belton was too deeply engrossed with his love-making to hear. With every nerve to his quivering, I stood with Belton's arms around me until I was sure Jim had a plain view of us.

As he strode into the room Belton let go of me with a sort of snarl, while I quickly smoothed my hair and looked into Jim's eyes.

This was white as paper. I left him to deal with Belton and went into the adjoining room, closing the door. I was prepared to come out and greet them, if Jim was too ugly with his detestable partner.

For a minute—two minutes—I heard nothing. Perhaps Jim was too angry for words and was kicking the Belton creature out of our house and down the stairs. Then, with my ear to the door, I distinctly heard Belton's voice saying, "I am sorry, old chap, but she's so blamed pretty, and you know, my dear fellow, when a woman leads you—"

I caught my breath. The creature was actually laying the blame upon me! No, it couldn't be! Even as I wrote it now in my journal, I can't realize that he actually made my husband believe I was the one who had—

But I may as well finish. It cools my brain a little to get it down on paper.

I flung open the door. "Jim!" I cried. "Have you taken leave of your senses? Is this man to have control of your mind as he has of our office affairs? Is he so low enough to make you believe you guilty in this nasty business? Have I got to tell you that—"

Like the fool woman I am, I crumpled up instantly and had a line, I told it of hysterics on both sides. There is much to settle yet, but I am too weary to write more tonight. (To be continued.)

EVERYDAY HELPS

Apples are coming into the market plentifully, now, and should be used in planning meals. They are one of the most healthful foods—easily digested because of the rich minerals they contain, and great in food value because of the sugar, fat and acid that is in them.

They can fit into any place in a meal, as an appetizer to begin dinner with, as the main dish for lunch, in salad, and particularly for dessert. It would be well to can as many of them as possible, for use during the winter. Put them up without sugar, if it is hard to get. If you can sugar, it is better to put into a pie or made into jelly. When preserving apples without sugar, pack them, after being pared and cut into slices, into hot jars, using a tablespoon, wooden ladle or silver knife for packing purposes; pour boiling water over the product in the jar.

Place the rubber ring and lid of the jar in position, with the lid not tight. Place jars in the canner and sterilize for thirty minutes. Remove jars, seal them, and invert them to cool. Fried apples make a very tasty dish and are easy to prepare. Pare apples and cut them into small pieces. In a frying pan melt a tablespoonful of fat or other fat and lay the apples in, then cover them with sugar and a pinch of cinnamon. Cover the pan and let them cook over a slow fire until they are soft. Which will be in about ten minutes. Then turn them, with a spatula, and leave the lid off. In a few minutes the apples will be brown on both sides, and will have a candied syrup around them. If they are turned carefully, each piece will be firm and separate from the others.

Baked apples should be prepared first by coring the apples. If this is not done there will be a hard, seedy part inside which cannot be eaten. Fill the hole with raisins or nuts or both. Put a little dot of butter and a pinch of cinnamon on top, and they will be ready to bake in a moderate oven for fifteen or twenty minutes, in a covered pan which is a third full of water. If desired, the water can afterwards be used as sauce, by thickening it with cornstarch and flavoring with lemon.

GIRLS OF TODAY

By HELEN RANDOLPH

A young music student, a vocalist, asked me the other day what I considered the most important trait in a singer. While I do not pretend to be much of a music critic, I am, at least, a lover of good music, and, perhaps, the opinion of many such people, I replied that I considered the most necessary trait in a singer.

Granted, of course, that the voice must be there, and that, if a singer becomes really great, his voice is personality and business to work and all those other requisites that go to make up the artist. But to me, sincerity is the greatest of all these. A singer who does not enter into his song, and who is singing only for the effect he can make on his audience, will fail to make any impression, except that of a mechanical device. For your true musician will promptly see under the veneer, and realize that the artist does not feel what he is singing. Those who reach the heart feel themselves. It is an old truism.

Most dependable teachers, when they give a pupil a new song, ask him first to get the words and get the meaning of the composition before anything is done toward studying the music. The perfect tone, proper phrasing and execution is merely the carrying out of the idea that must be fixed in the singer's mind to start on, then you have your finished product.

That seems to me to be why the Italian race has been so prominent in music. Their singers are emotional, a racial trait, and they do not mind showing these emotions, in song as well as in their individual lives. Consequently they live their songs and cannot fail to appeal to their hearers because of this very sincerity.

THE COW PUNCHER

BY ROBERT J. C. STEAD
Author of
"Kitchen and Other Poems"

"He's Mr. Merton. I'm his son. And he said to me, before he got so bad, he said, 'There's one honest man in this city, and that's Mr. Eliden.' Is that you, Mr. Eliden?"

"Well, I hope it is, but I won't claim such a distinction. I remember your father very well. Did he send you to me?"

"No sir. He's too sick. He don't know anybody now. He didn't know me tonight. He stopped and swallowed. And then I remembered what he said about you, and I just came."

"Have you help—a doctor—a nurse?"

"No, sir. No haven't any money. My father spent it all for lots that he bought from you."

Dave winced. Then, turning to the young woman, he said: "This is a real urgent case than yours. I'll call a taxi to take you to your address."

To his surprise, his visitor broke out in a fit of laughter. She was swinging one foot jauntily.

"It's all off," she said. "Say, Dave, you couldn't lose me in this town. You don't remember me, do you?"

Well, all the better. I'm rather glad I broke down on this job. I used to be something of an actress, and I'd have put it over it if it hadn't been for the kid. The fact is, Dave, she continued, "I was sent up here to decoy you. It wasn't fair fighting, and I didn't like it, but money has been mighty slow of late. I wonder—how much you'd give to know who sent me?"

Dave pulled some bills from his pocket and held them before her. She took them from his hand.

"Conward," she said.

Dave's blood went to his head. "The second!" he said. "The low-down dog! There's more in this than appears on the surface."

"Sure there is," she said. "There's another woman. There always is."

Eliden walked to his desk. From a drawer he took a revolver, cocked with it a moment in full of cartridges, and thrust it in his pocket.

The girl watched him with friendly interest. "Believe me, Dave," she said, "if Conward turns up missing I won't know a thing—not a thing."

For a moment he stood irresolute. He could only guess what Conward's plan had been, but that it had been diabolical and cowardly and that it concerned Irene, he was certain. His impulse was to immediately confront Conward, force a confession, and deal with him as the occasion might seem to require. But the girl's eyes were on him, and he felt on the boy, with his shock of brown hair and wistful, half-frightened face.

"I'll go with you first," he said, with quick decision. Then to the girl, "Sorry I must turn you out, but this case is urgent."

"That's all right," she said. "I'm used to being turned out. And before he knew it she was in the street. 'All right son,' said Dave, taking up the matter now. 'I'll have your name, your first name?'"

"Charlie."

"And your address?"

The boy mentioned a distant subdivision.

"This is out, isn't it? Well, we'll take the car. I guess I'd better call a doctor at once."

He went to the telephone and gave some directions. Then he and the boy walked to a garage and in a few moments were humming along the by-roads into the country. Dave had already become engrossed in his grand of mercy and his rage at Conward, if not forgotten, was temporarily dismissed from his mind.

He chatted with the boy.

"You go to school?"

"Not this year. Father has been too sick. Of course, these are holidays, and he says he'll be all right before the holidays over."

Dave smiled grimly. "The incurable optimism of it," he murmured to himself. "Then outwardly, 'Of course he will. We'll fix him up in no time with a good doctor and a good nurse.'"

They drove on through the calm night, leaving the city streets behind and following what was little more than a country trail. Here and there they bumped over pieces of graded street, infinitely rougher than the natural prairie; once Dave dropped his head into a collaring water trench; once he just grazed an isolated hydrant.

"And this is one of our choice residential subdivisions," said Dave to himself. "Fine business! Fine business."

As the journey continued the sense of self-reproach which had been static in him for many months became more insistent. The intrusion of Conward into his mind sent the blood to his head, but at that moment his reflections were cut short by the boy.

"We will have to get out here," he said. "The bridge's down."

Investigation proved him to be right. A bridge over a small stream had collapsed and was slowly being dragged into the water by a wrecking crew. Dave ran the car a little to one side of the road, locked the switch and walked on with the boy.

"Fine business," the intruder repeated to himself. "This is how our big success was made. Well, the 'success' has vanished as quickly as it came. I suppose there is a law somewhere that says that if you succeed in one way, you must fail in another."

They were passing through a settlement of crude houses, dimly visible in the starlight and by occasional yellow blurs. The intruder, who was the boy at last stopped, pulled the door open and Dave entered. At first he was conscious of a very strong and pungent odor, which he attributed to an oil lamp burning on a box. He walked over and turned the lamp up, but the oil was consumed; a red, silent, smoldering mass of glowing coals, which he felt in his pocket and struck a match.

The light revealed the dimness of the room. There was a bed covered with musty, ragged clothing; a table littered with broken and dirty dishes and pieces of stale food; a stove or two bare boxes serving as articles of furniture. But it was to the bed Dave turned, and with another match bent over the shrunken figure that lay almost concealed amid the coarse coverings. He

A Way to Dainty Teeth
To Safer, Whiter, Filmless Teeth

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

See How Teeth Glisten
When the Film is Gone

The results of Pepsodent show clearly in white, glistening teeth. You can see them everywhere, for a million folks now employ it. You can see them on your own teeth when you remove the film. And that's the purpose of this ten-day test.

Based on Pepsin Look in Ten Days

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digester of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The purpose of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to constantly combat it.

But pepsin must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth. So pepsin long seemed impossible.

What science has now done is to invent a harmless activating method. That method is employed in Pepsodent. The result is a tooth paste which will do what nothing else has done. And five years of tests seem to clearly prove that it opens a new dental era.

Pepsodent has been submitted to every form of clinical and laboratory test. Dentists everywhere have watched its effects and now urge its daily use. This week we offer a test to you, and we ask you to accept it.

Film on Teeth
Is What Wrecks Them

Dental science has found that most tooth troubles are due to a slimy film. You can feel it with your tongue.

That film clings to the teeth. It gets between the teeth, enters crevices and stays. The tooth brush doesn't end it. The ordinary dentifrice cannot dissolve it. So its damage is unceasing.

That film is what discolors—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also of many other troubles, local and internal.

That is why brushed teeth discolor and decay. Why tartar forms and pyorrhea starts. You may remove the debris, but the real cause of tooth troubles—the clinging film—is largely left to do its damage.

Now dental science has found a way to combat that film, after years of searching. We ask you to accept a ten-day test and see the results for yourself.

Rare Old Laces Are on Exhibition At Lace Style Show In New York

At the left is a shawl of Neufchatel lace, eighteenth century, draped on a model. On her arm is a scarf of point de Milan, made in Flanders early in the eighteenth century. In the center is a gown of Irish lace woven in Syria, while draped at the right is an exquisite piece of Bretonne bousse.

BY ELOISE.
New York is being treated this week to an exhibition of rare laces, both old world and new world designs. The lace style show, which is the most elaborate and representative one which has been shown in recent years, is being held in the Bush Terminal Sales building, where every convenience is to be had for the proper exhibition of the laces.

Hundreds of costly specimens of beautiful laces, many of which could not be duplicated, are shown from the principal lace-making centers of Europe. A number of beautiful pieces have been brought over for the exhibition, several of the most notable specimens having recently reached this country from Perugia, Italy.

Specimens will include laces of Italy, France, Spain, Switzerland, Russia, the Ukraine, Flanders, Sweden, Denmark, Norway, Ireland, England, Sicily, the Cyprus Islands, India, the United States and other lands. Pieces of an early historic period, showing some of the first laces made, of which specimens are extinct, are on display.

Laces in Every Use Exhibited.
As a whole, the exhibition includes laces employed in decorative uses, including apparel as fichus, bouffes, chair covers, curtains, lattice work, transparent window decorations, stolls, trimmings; laces used in wearing apparel as fichus, bouffes, burthas, capes, handkerchiefs, collars, armlets, dress trimmings, lace insertion, bridal veils, evening gowns, negligees and laces for house and street wear. The showing of antique laces will embrace a range of many famed and costly varieties. Special attention will be given to a showing of some of the beautiful laces now produced in America.

There will be a special showing of bridal veils. In this connection, there will be presented by living models a very attractive exhibition of bridal veils, designed by gifted craftsmen to illustrate the employment of the more modern, unconventional themes in lace with objects of animate and inanimate nature, such as orange blossoms, butterflies, morning glories and maiden hair as their principal motifs. Various wartime and battle scenes are admirably worked out in jabots, fichus and collars. In patterns the craftsmen have worked in something of the spirit of modern art, showing great originality in design and artistic execution in illustrating the lighter styles that are in vogue this year.

The large present demand for imported laces, coupled with the fact that buyers are seeking the most beautiful and costly lines almost regardless of price, lends a special interest in the renewed supply of the Druggists are selling a whole lot of "Neutrone Prescription 99" to people who must have free and strong muscles to support a vigorous body for work.

For sale by Smith Drug Co. and leading druggists everywhere.

Imported laces following the cessation of hostilities. On the other hand, the lace-making industry in Europe was practically suspended during the war, with the consequence that the production of American laces received a distinct impetus during the early period of the war, whose civilizing influence is still felt. Many American costume designers have depended upon Europe, established the means of producing their own lace trimmings, dress accessories and over-seatings with the result that some very beautiful native work in foreign weaves and designs is now appearing in the fashionable shops. Not alone are representative types of the well-known foreign laces successfully reproduced in this country, but some very distinctive laces originate in the United States.

The wholesale construction and embroidery machinery in Belgium and northern France by the Germans, who have thus stimulated their own industry, has left the production of the exquisite French and Belgian fabrics in a deplorable state. It will be years before the industry there can be returned to normal. Elsewhere in Europe the scarcity of raw materials and prevalent high wages have limited the output. In Switzerland, a great source of lace supply for this country, prices are soaring. In consequence, the commercial lace industry in the United States faces a most promising future. At the exhibition a wide range of domestic commercial laces is shown, one of the most attractive of these pieces is a quaint dress, Valenciennes, and embroidery, made in America.

Illustrated Talk Opened Show.
At the opening of the exhibition, Miss Marian Powys, a noted authority and craftsman, gave a "Historic Sketch of Lace in Costume," closing with models illustrating the "Use of Lace in Dress." Miss Elizabeth Gonn spoke on "Lace in Modern Costume," and Miss Ed. Hyde returned Saturday from a two weeks' stay in Fontana with their daughter, Mrs. C. Palmer and husband.

One of the most attractive of these pieces is a quaint dress, Valenciennes, and embroidery, made in America.

made by a Miss Mary Hakim and it took her seven years to complete it. The gown offers a charming example of originality in lace design. A wide variety of motifs adapted from animate and inanimate nature merge into a harmonious ensemble. It is one of the first and most valuable pieces of laces brought to this country since the war.

BADGERS WORK HARD IN PREPARATION TO FIGHT GOPHER SQUAD

Madison, Oct. 25.—With the glory of victory behind them, the Wisconsin university grid warriors are preparing for the realization of their greatest ambition—the defeat of Minnesota, the traditional foe of the Badgers, in the annual "Rivalry" game, which will be played at Camp Randall next Saturday with a star aggregation.

Although the Gophers fell before Iowa, they are more than ready to meet the Badgers, and no effort will be spared to decorate Minnesota's banners with the same fruit that the Cardinals carried down to both Northwestern and the Illinois.

In spite of the severe tussle last Saturday, the Badger squad is in good condition with the exception of a few minor bumps and bruises which really amount to nothing. A perfect front, with an unlimited reserve, will be presented against the invaders.

Badger Line Is Strong.

The stand which Wisconsin was able to make against Illinois on one yard line last Saturday proves that the new line combination has been perfected into a stone wall. The strength of the line and ends has never been bettered.

The games on Saturday will be the principal feature of a giant homecoming. Thousands of old grads are expected to return to the university to take part in the social affairs and see the game.

A shower of requests have poured into the athletic department by mail and it is doubtful whether the extra bleachers now in the process of construction will be sufficient to accommodate the huge crowd expected.

Every year since Coach John Richards took hold of the Cardinal eleven the Minnesota game has been the big event of the season. It mattered little whether either Wisconsin or Minnesota had made a good showing early in the season. The game was always the biggest and the one for which both teams began preparing from the beginning of training.

All Set For Gophers.

As Coach Richards' secret preparation has been devoted to the development of a machine especially designed for Minnesota, while other teams imagined that it was their turn to make a good showing early in the season, the Badgers have been working on the line and ends within closed gates, still remains unopened, so it is not difficult to know when they will be released and for whom they are.

The pinnacle of condition was reached in the middle of last week, so it is probable that the Badger practice will be light. Coach Richards will take no chances of any of his athletes being injured and will nurse them along just enough to keep them in trim.

Light scrimmages with the scrubs, using Minnesota plays, has been planned for a week's practice.

LA CROSSE GRID TEAM PROSPECTS BRIGHT

La Crosse, Oct. 25.—The La Crosse High school is in the race for the state football championship, having an unbeaten record up to date.

Saturday the strong La Crosse team, considered a dangerous rival, fell by a score of 57 to 7. Tomah and Sparta have been eliminated in the eastern part of the state. La Crosse trounced Tomah easily and Tomah defeating Sparta on Saturday 3 to 0.

Merrill, Marinette, Appleton, Waubesa and several other teams are still in the running.

Jailed Boxer Challenges.

Marquette.—Frank Schumacher, boxer and wrestler, sentenced to four months in the county jail for assaulting a Marquette policeman, has received a challenge for a wrestling match from James Demetral, a professional. Schumacher says that his present apartment would be rather cramped quarters for a bout on the mat but as he is released will set a date for a match. Schumacher was the champion boxer of the basketball Montana during the war.

BAR SILK STOCKINGS

Little Jack.—The Searcy High School, through its superintendent, has declared war on the high cost of living and decreed that the student overalls be the accepted uniform of the school, to be worn by himself and the boy students.

Girls, too, are to be enrolled in the fight and while they are not to wear overalls, as did the wartime farmettes, they are to do their bit by wearing cotton stockings. Superintendent Woodward said that girls will not be permitted to wear silk stockings to school.

BRINGING UP FATHER

ZUPPKE'S TEAM MEETS STAGG'S

Chicago, Oct. 28.—No sooner is one game off the calendar than Coach Stagg is preparing his football team for the next game. Next Saturday the Maroons travel to Champaign for the annual "Rivalry" game with Coach Zuppke's formidable team.

The occasion of the Chicago game at Champaign will be the signal for the return of thousands of former high grads making their annual pilgrimage to their alma mater.

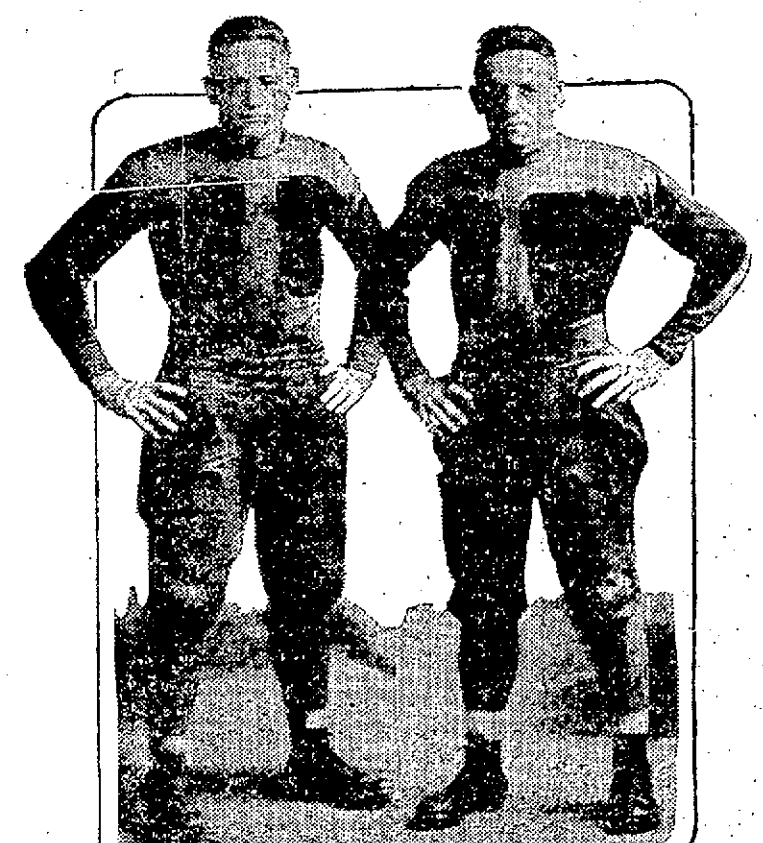

As a result of the Maroon 41 to 0 defeat of the Purple, Stagg's men are being touted as possible contenders for the big ten honors. From the present angle it looks as though the Maroons and Ohio State, which handed Michigan a 13 to 3 beating, will be the runners up for the honors.

The Midway players have a tough and stormy path, being confronted by Illinois and Wisconsin.

The fans are talking of Stagg's powerful team. In Cole, Graham and Hutchinson the Maroons have some stars of the first water. The work of Capt. Higgins in breaking up the plays of the opposition was another feature of Saturday's game against Northwestern.

been doing a flourishing business in cigar and confectionery stores and saloons.

Twins, Playing Ends at Northwestern, Bewildered Opponents Puzzle Own Mates

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 25.—The saying "they are as alike as two peas in a pod," does not do justice to the similarity between the Bernard twins, Springfield, Missouri, boys, who are holding down the ends on the Northwestern University football team. To add to the confusion, the boys' names are Lester and Chester, and they dress alike. Not more than two professors on the Evanston campus can tell them apart and at the Delphi Upsalon house Chester could pass for Lester any time during the day or night and the same is true of the other twin.

As far as any one can detect, the only difference between the two is that Lester has a very small mole on his cheek which is not visible more than a few feet distant and cannot be seen at night.

The twins entered Northwestern immediately after the armistice was signed. During the war they served as ensigns in the navy and played on the national champion Great Lakes football team. They are a hard pair to stop on the gridiron, not only for their size and strength, but because they are both natural football men. The confusion will become greater when they play on the Purple basketball team, for Lester is a forward and Chester is a guard, and their opponents will not know which of the two they are supposed to guard.

Both are brilliant students and they will graduate from Northwestern next spring after but three years of college work.

SPORT SNAP-SHOTS

BY JACK KEENE.

The indoor swimming season, just launched, opens with exceptionally bright prospects. Water sports have grown popular lately in several districts which had virtually no aquatic activities a year ago.

A number of new pools are now available for meets and exhibitions. Contestants of both sexes have multiplied. Among the younger element, in particular, great progress has been made and a few youths and maidens are likely to be added to the candidates for district and national championship laurels by the time the little tests come up for decision.

Above all, the coming of the Olympic games at Antwerp next summer makes it certain that our leading men and girls will put forth their best efforts during the intervening months in the hope of landing places on the teams which it is proposed to send to represent this country at the international fixture.

Under the circumstances there is assurance of the finest competition in the history of American swimming and a bountiful crop of national and world records. Among the potential record-breakers are a long string of topnotchers who have already displayed record-breaking ability, including Norman Ross, Perry McGilivray, Bud Wallen, Michael McCormick, Tedford Cana, Leo Giebel, Herbert Volmer, Harold Kruger, Leo Handly, George Cunha, the Misses Charlotte Boyle, Ethelinda Biehl, Ruth and Eleanor Smith, Frances Schroth, Dorothy Burns, Marie Curtis, Helen Thomsen, Bessie Ryan, Betty Grims and others. It will be surprising if most of the standards for pool swimming are not wiped off the board before the present season draws to an end.

Artie O'Leary, the clever lightweight, is ready to meet Willie Jackson in a return match as soon as the latter says the word. Johnson is trying to arrange a match that will bring him into the ring with Benny Leonard, but O'Leary's manager thinks that Jackson should tackle Artie for a second time before he obtains a match with the champion. Jackson and O'Leary fought about two months ago and the contest, which was held in Jersey, went eight rounds. Although Jackson had an advantage of six pounds in weight he was forced to travel at top speed to win on points.

O'Leary is so confident he can take Jackson's measure now he is willing to make substantial concessions to get a return match. O'Leary is also ready and willing to meet Lev Tendler, Johnny Dundee and Frankie Britt.

Miss Aileen Allen of Los Angeles, several times national diving champion, is winning laurels in a new field. During the last few weeks she has figured prominently in swimming. Her latest achievement was to finish a close third in a half mile open water event, in which competed the foremost mermaids of southern California.

Word comes that Norman Ross, the famous swimmer, who has been connected with the Illinois A. C. of Chicago since last spring, is about to return to the Pacific coast, where he developed into a champion. Says Schroth, Dorothy Burns, Marie Curtis, Helen Thomsen, Bessie Ryan, Betty Grims and others. It will be surprising if most of the standards for pool swimming are not wiped off the board before the present season draws to an end.

"Let's do the darn job together"

—Ches. Field

WHY is it that more and more smokers (millions now) are getting together with Chesterfields?

First of all, fine tobaccos. Our own buyers in the Orient send us the pick of the finest Turkish varieties (Xanthi, Cavalla, Smyrna and Samsoun). We blend these by a secret method with specially choice Domestic leaf.

This method brings out new qualities of flavor—a smoothness, a richness, a mellowness that go right to the spot. That's the reason Chesterfields satisfy.

And remember—"Satisfy" is Chesterfield's secret, based on our own private formula, which cannot be copied.

Every package has a moisture-proof wrapping—another reason for Chesterfield's unchanging quality of flavor.

TAKING THE PAIN OUT OF DISEASE

Shorewood, a residential suburb of Milwaukee, challenges attention as a community of extraordinary intelligence to the problem of contagious diseases among children. It has succeeded as well or better than any city of which I have heard, in securing almost absolute control of children's diseases.

From September 1, 1917 to August 1, 1928, there were 218 children reported to the health department as victims of one of the following diseases: German measles, chicken pox, measles, whooping cough, scarlet fever, mumps, diphtheria, or infantile paralysis. For a corresponding period in 1918 and 1919 there were but 22 victims of these diseases.

What Shorewood has done, you can do in your community by applying the Shorewood method which is as simple as a first-grade problem in arithmetic. It consists merely in treating every child who shows the slightest symptom of illness as though he were actually known to be the victim of a highly contagious disease. He is taken out of school immediately and kept isolated from other children until he has been proved to be safe.

The school authorities of Shorewood agreed and the parents agreed to the novel cooperative plan because people who understood explained carefully to others, until all understood that the best interests of each child and each family lay in playing the game to the limit.

A more detailed report of the plan will be sent to anybody who wishes to make his children as safe as those of Shorewood now are.

POTATO EXHIBIT WILL SURPASS ALL RECORDS

Madison, Oct. 25.—Backed by a 28,000,000 bushel state potato crop and with over 100,000 bushels of certified seed from which to choose exhibits, Wisconsin's display of standard potato varieties in Milwaukee, December 8-13, will surpass anything of a like nature to be shown on the American continent this season. J. C. Milward, secretary of the Wisconsin Potato Growers' association, reports that growers will exhibit boxes of certified standard variety stock.

Twenty or more Wisconsin counties will compete in the county classes showing the work that has been done on standardization by communities. Demonstrations for women in preparing and cooking po-

POTATO GROWERS TO COMBAT BLIGHT

Madison, Oct. 25.—Because of the general prevalence of late blight in the northwestern potato districts potato growers are already planning to combat the spread of the "disease" next fall.

This is particularly true in some of the northern counties where according to R. E. Vaughn of the College of Agriculture, serious damage resulted from the work of the fungus which thrived during the rainy periods of the late summer and fall.

"There has been enough blight this year, particularly in the more northern parts to furnish a big source of infection for next year," says Mr. Vaughn. "Unless climatic and soil conditions are just right, and potatoes are properly sprayed, serious losses will result from blight next year. Potato growers will do well to select their seed from fields which had no blight this year, and from fields upon the lighter types of soil. Spraying will hold the infection in check."

No Food Shortage Here Is Prediction of Hoover

Chest Colds, Coughs and Sore Throat Go Over Night

Begy's Mustarine is Better than Liniments, Plasters, Poultices or Hot Water Bottles. Does the Work in Half the Time.

Remember the terrible Influenza Epidemic last year.

The demand for Begy's Mustarine was so enormous, that stocks in retail stores and wholesale warehouses disappeared with amazing speed.

Get a box now—or two boxes, you can't tell what will happen.

But just as soon as your throat gets sore or you feel that tightening in the Chest.

Rub on Begy's Mustarine, for nothing on this earth will subdue inflammation, and prevent congestion, quicker than this great and first improvement on the old fashioned Mustard plaster.

It's the quickest pain killer known, so be sure when you even suspect croup, bronchitis or tonsillitis, to use it freely.

It won't blister not even the tenderest skin—it can not blister.

But it's hot stuff, and contains more concentrated non-blistering heat, than any other counter-irritant in existence.

That's why it goes right after pains and aches, soreness and swellings, no matter where located and ends all the misery and distress as quickly that sufferers are joyfully astonished. Use Begy's Mustarine, always in the yellow box, to ease the pain of rheumatism and gout.

Just rub it on for lame muscles, sore feet, stiff neck, cramps in legs, sprains and strains.

Get out the box promptly when you have neuralgia, neuritis, lumbago, headache, rheumatism, carache, toothache, or any ache anywhere.

Be sure its Begy's Mustarine—made of real yellow mustard and other pain-destroying ingredients. Druggists announce return of money if it doesn't do as advertised. One box equals 50 blistering Mustard plasters.

CAMELS are the most refreshing, satisfying cigarette you ever smoked! Blatz

The Beverage That Builds

BLATZ was studied carefully before the first bottle was produced.

Science sought out the nutritive qualities that an excellent cereal beverage must have. Invention found the best way to preserve these qualities and infuse them into Blatz.

And so Blatz is, first of all, wholesome.

And Blatz is delicious; for its makers have succeeded in attaining a distinctive flavor. It is quite different from anything you have tasted.

It is the flavor of ripened grain—fraught with the healthful elements which nourish and build men's bodies.

When first you drink Blatz you sense a satisfying completeness—you have found what you wanted. And to enhance this new joy is the knowledge that Blatz will do you good.

For sale wherever soft drinks are sold.

Janesville, Wisconsin, Oct. 27, 1919.

Janesville Daily Gazette
Janesville, Wis.
Gentlemen:—

It may be of interest to you to know that since we have opened our new store in your city, we have tried various means of advertising and have found that the Gazette has given us the best results of anything we have tried. For instance, we ran on Saturday, Oct. 25th, a one column ad stating that on Monday we would sell 36-in. percale at 19c per yd. Before we opened the store Monday morning, there were several people waiting to get in and a continuous stream have been coming all day. We have sold so far between 2500 and 3000 yds. It is indeed gratifying to us to have earned the confidence of the public in so short a time and it must be a pleasure for you to know that your paper has been so important a factor in helping us to gain this confidence.

Very truly yours,
OSBORN & DUDDINGTON.

RJO:MP

and for which mediums are chosen. The Gazette's distribution covers its field like a blanket. Look over the list and see how thoroughly it reaches every part of your business territory.
